DOES THIS MEAN REVOLUTION

Abram S. Hewitt once more appeals to the American people. He announces, through the medium of the National Democratic Committee, that Samuel J. Tilden has been elected President of the United States. In his pronunciamento he drops the casual remark that it remains for the two Houses, in the performance of their duty, to give effect to the will of the people, which, he says, 'expressed in the Constitutional mode by majority of the electoral votes, leaves no possible doubt of s Democratic triumph. This position of Mr. Hewitt leads us to remark that it is unfortunate for him, at a time when he is asking the people to take his word in preference to that of the President, that Mr. Tilden's forces should compel him to put his name to so flaunting a perversion of the truth as the National Democratic Committee's pronunciamento. The assertions in the document are unfounded in fact and dangerously foolish in the face of the truth that one hundred and eighty five electoral votes have been cast for R. B. Hayes, the Republican candidate for the Presidency. What, then, does this last manifesto mean? Mr. Hewitt and his confreres know the solemn truth that there is an undercurrent coursing through the body politic of the Republic, bearing calamity on its chaffing and restless bosom. He knows that documents like this pronunciamente are only calculated to stir up strife and bitterness which, if encouraged, will lead to fratricidal and devastating war, and leave the fabric of a Republican Government ruined and dismembered. Two great authorities are up now, and neither are supreme. The deciding gladiatorial contest has but just commenced in the Council Chambers of the nation, yet enough of the popular feeling tainted with a spirit of hostile sentiment has been exhibited to show the grave danger in the leaders of either political party inspiring in the popular mind opposition to the Constitutional result of the election as it may be decided by Congress. The crowning glory of the Republican party and its leaders in this perilous crisis is that they have counseled only measures of peace. If, therefore, any troubles should arise: if the clash of legal difficulties should unhappily end in an appeal to force, let it be

The tollowing clause from the law of Oregon is as plain as it is mandatory: "The Governor shall grant a certificate of election to the person having the highest num-ber of votes, and shall also issue a proclama-tion declaring the election of such person." This leaves no room for the exercise of "judgment" on the part of Governor

Grover, and yet, usurping his legal powers as chief executive of the State, he granted a certificate of election to the person receiving the smallest number of votes. after the people had decided by a majority of eleven hundred that another person should cast the electoral vote. Thus a public servant overrides the popular will of a sovereign people by an arbitrary reversal of their verdict at the ballot-box. But this outrageous usurpation of power was but a forerunner of a more infamous act. After a bold violation of his oath by usurping functions not conferred upon him by law he pretends to justify himself by misrepresenting the statutes and misquoting the authorities. And yet yesterday in the Senate of the United States one of its most distinguished members, Mr. Bayard, said that he would not condemn the action of Governor Grover, "because he had borne a good character and reputation for a great " number of years." On the same principle one might assert that a felon should not suffer the penalties of the law because, forsooth, he had once been a missionary. Governor Grover may have borne a good character in the past for many years, but when he in a partisan spirit ignored the verdict of a sovereign people and usurped his powers, in hopes of securing a triumph not fairly won, he nullified that character so far as integrity and honesty are concerned, and no one knows this better than Mr. Bayard of Delaware.

OF THE CHARACTER and reliability of the usual run of sensational news transmitted by special correspondents from this city to such papers as the Baltimore Gazette, the follow ng, an extract from a special of yesterday to that journal, is a fair specimen.

that journal, is a fair specimen.

"Silas M. Patterson, a son of Senator John J.

Patterson, of South Carolina, went South just about the time the trouble between the Returning Board and the Supreme Court of South Carolina was anticipated, with the sum of $2,700, with which to bribe the latter. He want down, and instead of bribing each judge with the (munificent) sum of $900, he pocketed the entire sum.

Like father, like son."

The above is a most unmitigated falsehood. The young man who is the victim of this outrageous attack is the son of Senator Patterson -a mere boy of 17-and is employed in the branch printing office of the Treasury. The only absence from his office since last September, as the records will show, was for a few days under leave to visit the Centennial He has not been South, and therefore the story that he "went South just about the time the trouble between the returning board and the Supreme Court was anticipated" is untrue. He has been faithfully at work at his office since election day, with the exception of two days at different times in addition to his Centennial leave. The Gazette, for some unaccountable reason has for some time past indulged in an inordinate amount of unwarrantable vilification and abuse of Senator Patterson, but why it should visit its partisan hatred and unjust denuncia tion of the father upon the son is a mystery indeed. Certainly a journal falls very low in the scale of respectability when it singles out from among the domestic circle of its partisan opponents a young and innocent victim upon whom to shake its foul venom. It is possible that the Gazette was misinformed, in which case it will, of course, make due correction, in justice to the young man and his family. THE Chicago Tribune still insists that Mr. Morrison did go over to Mr. Garfield's seat in the House some time since and say "that the people would be cutting each other's throats within a hundred days." Just what ability Mr. Morrison possesses as a genuine sure-enough prophet it is not in our province to say. We hope, however, his talent in this direction has been abridged by a merciful Providence, for when people fall industriously to work allcing and mangling each other's throats in a promiscuous manner it is quite evident that it will be "dangerous to be safe" in any largely-populated section of the coun-

WE crave attention to the complete and graphic description of the gambling-houses of Washington, which is presented in our columns this morning. The public of Washington is so constituted that it needs protection from this class of criminals There are an 'unusually large number of young men here, who are employed in the Sovernment offices, and it is for them that these gambling hells are most alluring. It seems strange that the business of gambling should be carried on so openly when law upon the subject is so explicit. Gamblers seem to thrive best in hard times. because when it is difficult to obtain money by legitimate means men are more easily enticed by the tempting, though remote, prospect of winning money on the turn of a card. Whenever a raid is contemplated upon these establishments, the gamblers always receive warning in time to close up their houses and get out of the way. This fact warrants the belief that is frequently expressed that the gamblers are in collusion with the authorities. It is to be hoped that now, as public attention has been, and will ontinue to be, drawn to these gambling dens, that they will be effectually and permanently closed, and the thieving blacklegs who run them will be brought to justice and punish

AFTER searching constitutional authorities and consulting eminent members of the legal profession, Governor Hayes says: "I am now satisfied that I have been honestly elected President of the United States, and I fully expect to be inaugurated." As a proper ad denda to this it might be said that thirty millions of people who have a profound interest in the maintenance of the Republic will see that the Governor's expectations are re-

MR. CRONIN, of Oregon, is coming her with that vote for Tilden. So says the telegraph. Mr. Cronin is a very great man, and it would be sacrellgious to compare him to anybody short of a king. like that famous king who marched his army of ten thousand men up a hill and then marched them down again, so with Mr. Cropin. He will bring that vote for Tilden here to Washington, and he will carry it back again.

THE New York Herald virtually throws up he Tilden sponge when it thus discourses edtorially upon the situation : "In all human robability Mr. Hayes will be our next President, and if the Democratic party is patriotic and magnanimous enough to accept this result when it finds that appeals to Congress and public opinion cannot prevent it, there is no reason for fearing that he will not treat it with fairness and justice."

GENERATIONS yet unborn will not fall to secord thanks to President Grant because of his timely interference in thwarting the wicked designs of the Tilden Democracy, and thus averting all horrors of sectional domination. The splendid service he has rendered the country in the past three months is scarcely clipsed by the victories of Vicksburg, Donaldson and Appomattox.

THE roving Democratic commission sent to Columbia, South Carolina, by the House have discovered that Haves and Wheeler carried that State without the shadow of a doubt. They now express surprise that Democratic Associated Press agents in South Carolina never had the honesty and decency to inform the public of that fact.

THE Army and Navy Journal acknowledges the receipt of subscriptions for the widows of Custer's command aggregating $11,015. Mrs. Custer, in gratitude, writes: "In behalf of those kind hearts who remember the brave the > GENTLEMEN of the Gordon-Lamar-Singleton-Randall-Cox stripe must feel rather uncomfortable since they have observed the President's determination to preserve the peace of the country at all hazards. "Let us have peace."

> THREE of the Republican members of the House of Representatives at Columbia, S. C., who went over to the Wallace cabal, have repented of their folly and returned to their own fold. Mr. Tilden's empty bar'ls had no temptations for them.

> DIPPING into the future we see a point in the neighborhood of March the 4th when Mr. Tilden's chances and the present House of Representatives will neter out together.

Mr. Pon Cameron

(From the Philadelphia City Item.) The tree that bears the best fruit receive the most stones, says the Persian proverb. The New York Sun writes that "Don Cameron is the directing spirit of the Administration, and the most confidential adviser of Grant in all his acts. He is cool, calculating and unscrupulous, with a natural taste for plotting and indirection. His has been the controlling mind and hand in all this villainy in the South, and he will not shrink while the army is at his command, and Sheridan and Sherman are in full sympathy with his schemes, to strike even more audaciously than has yet been witnessed He induced Grant to order the troops to Wash ington, and he has mere than once signified in unmistakable terms that they would be used f there was any occasion to require their en

Here, where the Secretary is best known Here, where the Secretary is best known, the above attack will cause surprise. For more than twenty years we have regarded Mr. Cameron as a good citizen—a quiet, estimable, enterprising, patriotic gentleman, generally well beloved. He has been engaged in active business, and, having made a large fortune, was intelligently superintending it when called to the War Office at Washington. How they can call such a man a plotter, a schemer, and unscrupulous is beyond comprehension. It is plain that they do not know him. Now, once for all, permit us to write that Mr. Don Cameron has been a distinguished leader, an Cameron has been a distinguished leader, an implicitly-trusted and largely-followed leader, in this State for twenty years. No one has given more liberally to the party, and no one has asked less of it than he. Modest, retiring, mselfish, be has at all times been a read unselfish, be has at all times been a ready helper to others.

Like his distinguished and much respected father, (Senator Cameron,) he never turns his back on friend or foe. He is educated, thoughtful, sagacious, practical, brave; he is thoroughly up in books and men, and here, where he is best known, everybody respects and trusts him. Mr. Cameron's life of fortythree or forty-five years has been useful and honorable, and therefore we are the more surprised that any one should assail him. But they assailed Washington and Lincoln—they assail frant. Why should the intrepid Came-ron be spared? especially as they think they ible candidate for

There is an unmistakable reaction of public sentiment in favor of retaining the electoral sys-tem. After all, perhaps our forefathers builded better than they knew. better than they knew.

Governor Hayes says that the duty of the Governor of Oregon in regard to the Federal election is simply ministerial, and that he has no discretion about selecting the electors.

Senator Gordon now turns up as a Tribune correspondent. This defining of positions by prominent men, through the columns of the New York papers, is a new phase in journalism and politics. Already the encouraging effects of Tilden's papers, is a new phase in journalism and politics.

Already the encouraging effects of Tilden's victory in New Jersey are visible there. No less than 64-000 gallons of applejack were distilled in the First revenue district of that State last month.

Mr. BAY ARD took the floor to speak against it, and said he was not prepared, and he did not think the Senate was, to publiely censure a man, as this resolution proposed to consure and condemn Gov. Grover. He did not assame to defend the act, but was not willing to condemn it. Gov. Grover had borne a good character and reputation for a great number of years, and had been elevated to the office of Chief Magistrate of his State; and should they censure a man, acting, if you please, errosecusity, but from a high and pure motive? He read from quite a number of decisions to show that Gov. Grover had authority for his act, and was apparently justified in the course he pursued.

The morning hour expiring,
Mr. MITCHELL asked unanimous consent to continus the discussion.

Mr. EDMUNDS objected.

Mr. MITCHELL said it was necessary to take action as soon as possible, as some of the witnesses from Oregon were in the city on expense.

Mr. EDMUNDS refused consent, but would not object to the Senator from Delaware concluding his remarks.

THE TRIBUNAL FOR COUNTING ELECTORAL VOTE. Mr. EDMUNDS demanded the regular order, which was Resolution No. 10, providing for counting the electoral vote by the Supreme Court.
Mr. MITCHELL said he had demanded the yeas and nays on his resolution, and he hoped they would be taken before the resolution was Mr. EDMUNDS. I demanded the regular

Mr. BOGY rerumed the floor, and reviewed the action of the Vice Presidents in counting the electoral vote and the regular appointment of tellers from the first election down to the present time. He read largely from the compilation recently made by Mr. McDonaid, chief clerk of the Senate, to fortify his argument by the record.

He arged the necessity of joint rules, and read from them to show that without them there would be no use to preside over the joint meeting for counting the electoral vote, and no one to announce the vote. In discussing the twenty, second joint rule he said it was only the twelfth section of the amendment to the Constitution earried out. He said that his friend from Vermont (Mr. Edmunde) and he thought it was very fortunate for the joint rule that he was not, for he would surely have rose and objected to it.

Mr. MoRTON saked if the Senator intended to assert that the twenty-second joint rule and the twelfth section of the amendment to the Constitution were identical, and did the twelfth section of the amendment give either House authority to throw out the electoral vote of a State?

Mr. BOGY said be did not think so. He said the prerumption was that the votes were before the Senate and House for count. It was not a question of rejection, for nothing could be rejected till it was before you. You could not throw a thief out of your hyans till he was in it.

Mr. MOHTON said the Senator wanted the twenty-second joint rule, which would allow one house to throw out the electoral vote of a State.

He (Mr. Mohton) thought it a very delicate matter to THROW OUT THE VOTE OF A STATE. and ought not to occur except upon due necessity, and then only when both Houses agreed to the necessity of throwing it out.

Mr. BOGY continued, and argued that it mould be necessary to presume an unheard-of de-gree of corruption on the part of the two Houses, or either of them, to suppose that they would be actuated by partisan motives solely in throwing out the vote of a State when they were counting the electoral vote.

cut the vote of a State when they were counting the electoral vote.

Mr. BURNSIDE asked the Senator if he supposed the members of the two Houses would owe any greater reverence to the people in counting the electoral vote than the yillid the two committees who went to Louislana to witness the count of the vote of that State.

Mr. BOGY said he did not, and to the credit of both parties who went to Louislana, they both admitted the corruptions existing in that State.

Mr. BURNSIDE. How does it happen then that those two committees come to such different conclusions in regard to Louislana.

Mr. BOGY said he did not think they had reached different conclusions.

eached different conclusions.

Mr. BURNSIDE asked if the Supreme Court

Mr. BURNSIDE asked if the Supreme Court would not owe more reverence to the country and more impartiality than would either the Senate or the House.

Mr. BOGY thought there had been times when the Supreme Court had given partisan decisions. He would not say they had done so corruptly, but they had been swayed by public opinion. He objected to transferring the count of the electoral vote to the Supreme Court, but hoped that it would be left to the two Houses, and that they would discharge their duties patriotically and impartially, and the country would again return to to its former prosperity.

Mr. RANDOLPH read a record of the counting of the vote in February, 1857, that Senators might have before them at this stage of proceedings the correct history of the facts concerning the Wisconsin vote at that time, and had intended to say more, but the hour was so late he would desist.

The vote was then taken by yeas and nays, and ANOTHER ONE TO-DAY. Mr. EDMUNDS gave notice that on to-morrow he would call up one of the other resolutions for counting the electoral vote, and urge its passage. At 4 o'clock, on motion of Mr. HAMLIN, the Senate went into executive session, and, at 4:10 o'clock, adjourned.

House of Representatives. On motion of Mr SOUTHARD, of Ohio, the bill for the organization of the TERRITORY OF ORLOHAMA, which was the special order for to-day, was post-poned until the third Wednesday in January. Mr. HALE, of Me., asked leave to offer for reference a bill to enable the citizens of the State of Colorado to cut and remove timber from the public lands for mining purposes and for the con Mr. HALE said he offered this bill for reforence because the people of Colorado had no voice here, as it was not called either as a Territory or The SPEAKER reminded Mr. HALE that deate was not in order. Mr. SPRINGER, of Ill., objected to the intro-nction of the bill.

Mr. HALE said that showed the hardship inder which the people of Colorado labored.

The House then resumed consideration of Mr.
Stann's bill to utilize the product of gold and BLAND's bill to utilize the product of gold and silver mines.

Mr. DURHAM, of Ky., advocated the adoption of the substitute, proposed by Mr. BLAND, providing for the coinage of the silver dollar of the standard authorized by the act of 1837, and making it a legal tender for all debts.

Mr. WILLARD, of Mich., a member of the silver commission authorized by act of the last session of Congress, said he had hoped that the question would not be pressed until after the silver commission had presented their report. He was in favor, however, of the coinage of the silver dollar. When the report of the commission was made it would, in his opinion, fully warrant the restoration of the old standard of the country, the American silver dollar as it was established by the report of Alexander Hamilton in 1792. All of the investigation that the commission had made had gone to prove that the silver dollar has a greater supremacy in trade and business than any other coin.

It was of a greater appreciative value 2than the sovereign of Engiand or the france of France, and was used by many more millions of people as a better purchasing medium. At no time has the silver dollar ever lost its purchasing power. All or nearly all, of the political economists who were summoned to appear before the silver conmission had agreed that if silver was thrown out of the coinage of the world the tendency would be to greatly appreciate the value of guid. To throw out silver coinage would be to affect disastrously the luxuries of all classes, and it would tend to appreciate the indebtedness of the whote world.

Mr. PHILLIPS, of Kan., said he should vote for the substitute in relation to the coining of the silver dollar. It was time that action was taken in that direction. mr. CHITTENDEN, of N. Y., appealed to the common sense of the House to reject

A BILL SO FRAUGHT WITH BVIL A BILL SO PRAUGHT WITH EVIL

to the country as this was. This whole subject of the silver coinage was referred to an able committee at the last session of Congress, and yet it is now proposed to take the business out of their hands. This bill was fraught with disaster to the country, and this House should hesitate when the hankers and political sconomists of the country look upon this bill with alarm, and regard it as a sweeping menace of confusion and disaster. Why should this House close its eyes to the fact that silver is one of the most fuctuating and changeable of the mediums of exchange at this day. It was an indecent haste for the House to attempt this legislation before the commission of last session had fad time to make their report.
This legislation was proposed, too, just as light was breaking for a return to specie payments.

Mr. GARFIELD, of Ohio, called attention to the fact that the

RELATION OF GOLD AND SHYEE

to each other had been discussed by the nations of the world for hundreds of years. It was a question that required the deepest study and upon which there should be the greatest possible amount of light and knowledga. While a commission appointed by Congress is preparing to report on this very important question, this House proposes in hot haste to pass this bill after a depate of two hours, which is parcelled out to members in pieces of five and ten minutes. What he appealed for was time—time to consider this great and important question. He called attention to the facts of the great fluctuations of sliver the past few weeks, and in view of these fluctuations is was not proper to pass such a bill as this in so great a hurry. Of the two evils proposed by this bill he, however, preferred the substitute, which provided for the colonage of the silver dollar, for that partly of the coriginal bill which related to buillion was all in the interest of the speculators. He was as anxious as any one for a law to settle this vexed question of the currency, but he wanted the bill to be considered more deliberately and more carefully. RELATION OF GOLD AND SILVER

Mr. HEWITT, of N. Y., said there are few Mr. HEWITT, of N. Y., said there are few questions of more consequence or of more delicacy and difficulty than this which relates to the dnancial interests of the country. When men suffer in health they send for a doctor, and when they are engaged in litigation they send for a good lawver, and if these matters are neglected the individual alone suffers. But in a delicate question like this, where the whole country would suffer, all seem competent to act, and men are asked to act hastily on a measure which all do not fully understand. He pleaded for time, He pleaded for light and knowledge, and he asked the House to WAIT FOR THE REPORT OF THE COMMISSION wait for the report of the commission on silver, which will be presented to Congress in a few weeks at the most. We are told that this information will certainly come, and yet we are asked now to act as though some greatintorest of the people was immediately suffering for this bill. He knew of no great interest that was suffering, unless it is that silver stocks are not us high as they were some time ago.

He knew, however, that the business of the whole country would suffer if we go into this hurried legislation. The debtor will be poored, and the oreditor will be no better off. The bill will be noted in order to properly consider this important question. Mr., Hawirr quoted to show the fluctuations of silver, and contended that no good result would follow the passage of such an act as this. By the passage of this act the American people will be robbed more than any others, and it is the duty of the House to protect the interests of these people.

Mr. KASSON, of Icwa, argued that the bill as of the House to protect the interests of these people.

Mr. KASSON, of lowe, argued that the bill as originally reported by Mr. BLAND was in the interest of the bullionist alone. We have now in this country two legal tenders, gold and paber, and this bill proposes to make an additional legal tender. It is nothing more than the creation of an indefinite new legal standard of value. He also called attention to the fluctuations in silver, and argued from Director Linderman's report, that the bill proposes to make a standard of that commodity which is most fluctuating. The fluctuations in money averywhere affected the mechanic and the laboring man. It does not affect the rich man and the capitalist, but every share affects those who are least able to stand it. The bill proposes to give the silver dollar a value affect the rich man and the capitalit, our every share affects those who are least able to stand it. The bill proposes to give the silver dollar a value which it has never before had. He protested sgainst any action at this time, when the fluctua-tions of silver has not been definitely determined. When the silver commission report it will, doubtless, state definitely what standard for sil-ver can be properly and fairly adopted. Mr. KELLEY, of Pe., argued that a

Mr. KELLEY, of Ps., argued that a DOUBLE STANDARD alone gave stability to a curredcy, and when a nation relies upon a double standard it has an unwavering currency. When gold appreciates, aliver depreciates, and vice verse, and therefore silver should also be a standard. In the name of justice and of honesty he appealed for the enforcement of the provisions of the law under which the Government has issued two thousand million of bends. He asked for the passage of this bill in the interest of justice for the oppressed and wronged American people. They are in want for labor. Our legislation on the finances heretofore has driven skilled mechanics and workmen to poverty and to vagrancy, and he manages neretofore has driven skilled mechanics and workmen to poverty and to vagrancy, and he asked in the name of honor and honesty-that the House

STAND BY THE FUNDING ACT OF 1870. The who?a question here is whether values shall be doubled, and disarimination shall be made against the poorer classes. He plead for the rights of oppressed labor, and, therefore, he wanted a double standard. France has three least tenders—gold, sliver and the notes of the Bank of France. Her industrial interests are prosperous, while those of Germany and the United States, which alike produce a single standard, are suffering.

Mr. BLAND, of Mo., said a good deal had been maid about the haste with which it was alleged it was attempted to put this bill through. He called attention to the fact that all manner of motions for delay were interposed at the last session. Each if the House waited for the report of the silver commission, as had been suggested, the same requests would be made for time for debate and for delay.

The laboring people of this country demanded this bill, and if gentlemen who opposed it would go smoon the laboring classes they would find that to be the case.

The previous question was then seconded, and the House passed the substitute offered yesterday by Mr. BLAND by a vote of 167 years to 53 mays.

THE BILL AS FASSED

THE BILL AS PASSED

"A bill authorizing the coining of the standard silver doilar and restoring its legal tender character.

"Be it enacted, &c., That there shall be from time to time, coined at the mints of the United States, silver dollars of the weight of four hundred and twelve and one half grains of standard allver to the dollar, as provided for in the act of January 18, 1837; and that said dellar shall be a legal tender for all debts, public and private, except where payment of gold coin is required by law."

THE VOTE IN DETAIL WAS AS POLLOWS:

YEAS.

Gibson, Norton,
Hale, U'Brien,
The House then resumed consibil heretofore reported from the Judiciary to declare the oil heretofore reported from the Committee on Judiciary to declare the BURLINGTON AND MISSOURI RAILBOAD a branch of the Union Pacific road.

Mr. CROUNSE, of Neb., said that since the bill was up last the fact had come to his knowledge that there was a large interest here in opposition of the bill, and that every expedient was to be resorted to to defeat it.

Mr. PRWE, of Ma, said the bill was an outrage. If it passed it would reduce the revenues of the Union Pacific wislons of the act of last session. This road now wanted all the advantages that would result from being a branch of the Union Pacific without increasing any of its obligations or repossibilities.

Mr. RASSON, of Iowa, presented a telegram from prominent bussiness men of Iowa protesting against the passage of the bill, as it would discriminafe against other roads connected with the Union Pacific.
